INTRODUCTION

This list is a very brief summary of the information available for consultation in the search room of the North Yorkshire County Record Office. Names of places appearing without further qualification in the following pages indicate that abstracts (or "calendars") of deeds are available in typescript form on the shelves. Figures in brackets indicate the numbers of documents. The letters MIC followed by numerals indicate the microfilm reference numbers to the item(s) immediately preceding. The letters NYCROP indicate North Yorkshire County Record Office Publications. (A full list of these publications is available from the office).

Separate lists of the following types of records are available:

- Guide no. 2: parish registers, census returns, land tax assessments, tithes apportionments, enclosure awards in the record office
- Guide no. 3: a guide to maps & plans in the record office
- Guide no. 4: enclosure awards (a detailed list) in the record office
- Guide no. 5: parish registers in North Yorkshire
- Guide no. 7: monumental inscriptions; non-conformist church & chapel registers
- Guide no. 8: plans of railway lines & buildings
- Guide no. 9: mining plans
- Guide no. 10: architectural plans

A knowledge of old administrative boundaries & a knowledge of the functions of various types of local authorities in the past are necessary to identify the most likely places to find records & information. The second of these requirements can be satisfied by the many printed books on the subject, but the first is so localised in its nature that there are few readily available printed sources. Users of this guide may therefore find the following notes helpful in conjunction with the North Yorkshire Record Office Guide no. 6 (Townships & Parishes):

- i) The county of North Yorkshire was created in 1974. It comprises the major part of the North Riding of Yorkshire together with the city of York & parts of the East & West Ridings of Yorkshire. Prior to 1974 each of the ridings & the city had exercised the functions of county councils and had long traditions of independent local government. The records of those independent county administrations remain in the places where they were created and/or kept before 1974. The result is that many records relating to the modern county of North Yorkshire are kept outside its boundaries in Wakefield & Beverley because they are an integral & inseparable part of the archives of the administrative counties of the East & West Ridings. So, for example, records relating to bridges in Craven are most likely to be found in the West Riding archives now in the custody of the West Yorkshire Archives Service at the Registry of Deeds, Newstead Road, Wakefield. Likewise the North Yorkshire County Record Office contains similar material relating to the counties of Cleveland & Durham as created in 1974 because those counties contain parts of the North Riding. Local government reorganisation in 1996 re-established York (along with some surrounding areas not part of the pre 1974 York city) as an independent administration but left the remainder of the North Yorkshire county boundary unchanged: the archives of the city are at York City Archives, Art Gallery Building, Exhibition Square, York.
- ii) Records from private sources, such as the records of the administration of privately owned estates, have normally been deposited in the county record offices of the counties to which they primarily relate and/or in which the principal seat of the family to whom they belong lies. Before 1974 the appropriate repositories for those parts of the East & West Ridings which now lie in North Yorkshire were:-
 - a) The East Riding County Record Office at County Hall, Beverley. That office was superseded in 1974 by the Humberside County Record Office, which has in turn been superseded by the East Riding of Yorkshire Archive Office from April 1996, at the same address which contains many of its archives & manuscripts. Some of the East Riding CRO's manuscript collections & archives were transferred to the Hull University Library. Both these repositories contain records relating to North Yorkshire.
 - b) Leeds City Library archives department acted as a repository for privately owned manuscripts & archives for the northern part of the West Riding in the absence of a county record office for the West Riding. Its

- archives & manuscripts are now administered by the West Yorkshire Archives Service. It contains many important records relating to North Yorkshire.
- c) Sheffield City Library archives department acted for the southern part of the West Riding in a similar fashion to Leeds in the northern part.
 - iii) The Yorkshire Archaeological Society at Leeds has collected manuscripts & archives relating to the whole of Yorkshire since before local authorities began to undertake this task. It contains many important records relating to North Yorkshire.
 - iv) Ecclesiastical records, which consist of the records of the bishops (diocesan records), archbishop (provincial records) & parishes & others, & which include such records as wills & inventories, bishops' transcripts & parish registers, are organised on an entirely different basis from those of the secular records mentioned above. The boundaries of ancient & modern dioceses & archdeaconries bear little relation to the boundaries of local government units. As a very rough guide, however, one may take the modern A1 highway as a division: wills & bishops' transcripts for places west of the road and which formerly lay in the North Riding are likely to be at Leeds Archives, those for places east of the road at the Borthwick Institute, York or (for some substantial "peculiar" such as Northallerton & Crayke) at the Prior's Kitchen in Durham. The deposit of parish records for the western & northern parts of North Yorkshire is organised according to archdeaconry boundaries: this means, for example, that the parish records of Scarborough are deposited in Beverley while the parish records of Selby & Malton are deposited in the Borthwick Institute at York.
 - v) Some records are arranged in accordance with administrative boundaries which ceased to be used long before 1974. Land tax records (QDE(L) in the following list), for example, were compiled for each township or parish & these townships were grouped in wapentakes: Guide No.6 indicates the wapentake in which each township lay.

This list is in a continuous state of revision. New information is constantly being prepared for consultation in the forms of transcripts, abstracts, or microfilms. Although the staff of the record office undertake the major part of this work, several voluntary workers give much assistance, particularly in the preparation of typed transcripts & abstracts. This voluntary work is much appreciated by all who use the search room & all who are concerned for the preservation of records.

Burial Boards

The Burial Act of 1853 enabled local authorities to administer their own cemeteries and thus relieve the problem of overcrowded churchyards. Where a cemetery was created a Burial Board was appointed by the vestry meeting until 1894 when the duty passed to the District or Parish Council under the Local Government Act. The Local Government Act 1972 abolished Burial Boards & their powers passed to district & parish councils.

Drainage Boards

Drainage Boards were created by private Acts of Parliament conferring power on a body of drainage commissioners or trustees to improve or maintain drainage works for a particular district. Rates were levied on the land benefiting, or expected to benefit, from the drainage works. During the nineteenth century the number of drainage authorities proliferated and the system became increasingly unworkable. The Land Drainage Act 1930 attempted to rationalise the system by setting up a number of Catchment Boards with power to abolish, amalgamate or reorganise the drainage districts in their area.

Boards of Guardians

Under the Poor Law Amendment Act 1834 groups of parishes were amalgamated into "unions" to provide for the relief of the poor. They were administered by elected Boards of Guardians. Outdoor relief was almost entirely abolished and those unable to support themselves were taken into workhouses. The 1929 Local Government Act abolished Boards of Guardians and transferred their functions to County and County Borough Councils.

Highway Boards

Under the Highway Act 1862 Quarter Sessions were empowered to establish Highway Boards to administer the highways for a group of parishes. Highway Boards in the North Riding were set up in 1867. The Boards were abolished in 1894 and their powers transferred to County Councils

School Boards (c.f. S)

Forster's Education Act 1870 established that England should be divided into districts and elementary schools provided in areas where provision was insufficient. School boards were elected by the ratepayers to manage the districts and empowered to build new schools or absorb existing ones. These were the first schools to be administered by a local authority and were supplementary to the voluntary schools, run by the National Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor and the British and Foreign School Society. The schools were undenominational and, following Balfour's Education Act of 1902, became Council schools.

Turnpike Trusts

Turnpike trusts were established by Acts of Parliament which allowed local trusts to charge a toll in exchange for the right to build and maintain a road. Responsibility for most of these roads passed to the County Councils in 1888

Coroner

Coroners were first appointed in 1194. They had a number of duties but by the thirteenth century were responsible for holding inquests in cases of sudden death, their main task nowadays. Originally the Coroner was a royal officer but under the Local Government Act 1888 is now appointed by the County Council. Very few Coroner's papers survive before the mid nineteenth century and records less than 75 years old are not available for consultation

District and Borough Councils

District Councils were established by the Local Government Act 1894. Counties were divided into county boroughs and rural or urban district councils. Urban District Councils superseded the Local Boards of Health set up in many towns under the Public Health Act of 1848, and similarly the Rural District Councils took over from the Rural Sanitary Authorities established in 1872.

Joint Authorities

JA/YCC Under an Act of 1806 commissioners were appointed by the Justices of the Peace of the three ridings to provide "a convenient house with suitable accommodation for His Majesty's Judges at the Assizes of the said County". The commissioners bought a property in Lendal, York & in 1807 were appointed a standing board to continue its administration. In 1824, again under Act of Parliament, the Justices for the three ridings appointed a Court of Gaol Sessions to administer the York Castle gaol & this court was given the responsibility of nominating the commissioners for the Judges Lodgings. Both bodies were abolished by the Local Government Act 1888 & their duties transferred to the Yorkshire County Committee.

- NG/MP The Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act 1872, relating to mines other than coal mines, required the owner of any mine in which more than twelve persons were employed underground to send to the Secretary of State at the time of abandonment of the mine an accurate plan showing the boundaries of the workings of the mine up to that time. Custody of these plans passed to the Health & Safety Executive who transferred them to local record offices. In the majority of cases involving mines in North Yorkshire a tracing of an original plan was deposited and it is these tracings that have been acquired. The office received approximately 92 plans, all dating from the late nineteenth or early twentieth century. The coverage of the plans is patchy and plans were not received for every abandoned mine in the county.

- NG/RS The Shipping Act of 1786 required that all ships over 15 tons be registered at the port from which they usually traded and registers for both Scarborough & Whitby are available from this date. The crew lists and agreements cover the period 1857-1872 but are only a small proportion of the surviving records. They were originally held by the Public Record Office who extracted a sample and offered the remainder to County Record Offices. They were divided by port of registration and records for some ships registered at the North Riding ports of Whitby, Scarborough and Middlesbrough were extracted from the five miles of records then held in London. The vast majority of the records were taken by The Maritime History Archive, Memorial University of Newfoundland, St Johns, Newfoundland. The Sea Fisheries Act 1868 required that all sea fishing boats be registered.

The valuation books for North Yorkshire, also known as 'Domesday Books' after their only comparable precedent, are deposited at the Record Office. They include the names of the owners & occupiers of land, a description of the property and its situation, a reference to the series of valuation maps [these maps are not available at the North Yorkshire County Record Office but are held by the Public Record Office, Kew], the original gross value with deductions for buildings and other structures and the original full site value with deductions for public rights of way, rights of common, easements etc.*

After the 1st World War the work of motor taxation increased enormously and the Finance Act of 1920 rationalised the methods of registration to create the system which remained in operation, with minor amendments, until the centralising of vehicle records at Swansea and the closure of the North Riding taxation office in March 1978. An incomplete series of cards for vehicles registered up to the 1970s gives details of the owner, make and chassis number and horse power of the vehicles. North Riding Register of Deeds

The North Riding Register of Deeds began in 1736 and closed in 1970. No deeds made later than 31 August 1970 are registered and no deeds have been accepted for registration since 31 August 1972. The Registry covers only the former North Riding. Separate registries operated in the West and East Ridings and are housed at Wakefield and Beverley respectively. The city of York was not covered by any of the registries. Although it was never compulsory to register deeds, the vast majority are registered since this gave a more secure title to the property. Deeds could be registered either as a complete copy or as a "memorial" - a shortened form of the deed giving the basic information as to the parties and property but eliminating other information such as covenants. Prior to 1885 the Registry is indexed by place and by vendor. The index is a first letter index, not strictly alphabetical. After 1885 all parties to the deed are indexed alphabetically. The place index is discontinued from about the mid 1960s

North Yorkshire County Council

North Yorkshire County Council was created in 1974. It comprised the major part of the North Riding of Yorkshire together with the city of York and parts of the former East & West Ridings of Yorkshire. Parts of the North Riding were transferred to the counties of Cleveland & Durham. Local Government reorganisation in 1996 re-established York as a separate administration (along with some surrounding areas not part of the pre 1974 city) but left the other North Yorkshire county boundaries unchanged.

Petty Sessions

Petty Sessions, meetings of two or three Justices, appeared gradually until in 1828 courts of Quarter Sessions were empowered to create within the county divisions for Petty Sessions, regularizing the earlier informal divisions. Petty Sessions dealt with many minor offences & were the predecessors of the present magistrates courts. Early petty sessions records are rare but some were returned to Quarter Sessions and can be found with the Quarter Sessions bundles (see QSB). There are also registers of convictions (see QDX) and returns of fines from petty sessions (see QDZ). Recent court records remain confidential.

Quarter Sessions

Until the creation of County Councils, the Justices of the Peace were responsible for local government in the shire or riding. They had both judicial and, from the sixteenth century onwards, administrative functions. Their records cover crime, roads & bridges, weights & measures, vagrancy, houses of correction, licensing, dissenters, Roman Catholics, county rates, militia, police and various taxes. The records listed here relate only to the former North Riding and exclude Richmond and Scarborough which held their own Sessions (see DC/RMB & DC/SCB). Separate Quarter Sessions courts were also held for the West Riding, the East Riding & York. The Liberty of Ripon was subject to its own court, independent of the West Riding, and a few records may be found with the Ripon Corporation archive (DC/RIC). The majority of the Liberty's records are housed at Wakefield.

- QAB From early times the repair of bridges was a recognised public duty and the Statute of Bridges 1530-31 provided that the county was liable for the maintenance of bridges and 300 feet of highway at either end where no other liability could be proved. From the end of the seventeenth century a salaried bridge surveyor or surveyors were appointed by the county. By the nineteenth century this Bridgemaster was acting as architect and surveyor of all public works in the Riding and had assumed responsibility for upkeep of county buildings. In 1879 he was appointed County Surveyor and became responsible for all main roads.

QAG Houses of Correction, originally more in the nature of workhouses than prisons, were first set up under an Act of 1576-77. Idle and disorderly persons, beggars, trespassers, rogues etc were to be set to work under the supervision of the Justices. Gradually the Houses came to be used for the imprisonment of minor offenders. A House of Correction was built in Richmond by 1620, in Pickering in 1650 and in Thirsk in 1667. The Thirsk House replaced the one at Pickering and was itself replaced by the House of Correction at Northallerton in 1788. A short article on the Northallerton House of Correction can be found in NYCRO Miscellany 1992 (NYCROP 52)

QAL Acts of 1815, 1828 & 1842 required parish overseers to send lists of pauper lunatics in their care to the Clerk of the Peace. The main series of returns for the North Riding does not begin until 1828, although there are a few earlier returns for 1806, 1810-1813. The return of 1813 must have been to ascertain the likely demand on the proposed County Lunatic Asylum in Northallerton. Legislation in 1808 & 1828 empowered the Justices to provide a county asylum for lunatic paupers and to join with other counties for this purpose. Plans for an asylum at Northallerton came to nothing but in 1847 a County Lunatic Asylum run and financed jointly by the North and East Ridings was opened at Clifton. The administration was supervised by the Justices through a committee of "Visitors" who reported to Quarter Sessions. After 1865, when the East Riding established their own asylum, Clifton was the concern of the North Riding alone. The asylum took not only pauper lunatics but other 'private' patients who contributed to their own upkeep. Private lunatic asylums also existed and were licensed by the Justices under the 1832 Act.

QAP The records listed here are those accumulated by the Clerk of the Peace. Those of the Chief Constable and the police force itself are to be found separately in the class QP.

The County Police Act 1839 empowered the Justices to establish a paid constabulary but although moves were made in the North Riding to adopt the Act, nothing came of the proposals until the Police Act 1856 made the establishment of a paid police force compulsory. A Police Committee, set up in 1852 to consider improving the police system, existed until 1888 when control of the police force became the responsibility of a joint committee of the County Council and the Justices of the Peace.

- QAP Plans & specifications for police stations & courthouses 1861-1901 [MIC 1462]
- QAV The licensing committee was established under the Licensing Act of 1872. This required a Justices licence or certificate in all cases where intoxicating liquor was sold by retail with the exception of the sale of wine and spirits off the premises. For other licensing records see classes PS and QDL(V)
- Alehouse licensing committee minutes 1873-1942 [MIC 1216]
- QAW Several acts of parliament gave the Justices jurisdiction over weights & measures. An Act of 1698-99 prohibited the sale of ale and beer in unstamped vessels. The Justices were to be the prosecuting authority and to help the plaintiff to recover half the penalty to which by law he was entitled. Under the Act of 1794-95 Quarter Sessions were to appoint examiners of weights & balances and to provide standard weights & measures. An Act of 1797 empowered the appointment of inspectors by Justices in Petty Sessions and an Act of 1824 required counties to purchase copies of model standard weights deposited in the Exchequer. From 1858 to 1889 police officers were appointed inspectors of weights & measures.
- Weights & measures 1698-1878 [MIC 1203]
- QDA(M) A necessary qualification for a commission in the militia or as a deputy lieutenant was the possession of or being heir to landed property to an annual value proportionate to the officer's rank. Under the Militia Act of 1756/7 and later Acts officers were required to make a signed declaration of their property qualification which was to be filed with the Quarter Sessions records and the Clerk of the Peace was to copy the declarations on a roll.

- QDA(P) Lists submitted to the Clerk of the Peace by the Clerks to the Justices (in Petty Sessions) of petty or parish constables appointed under the Act of 1842. These lists were to be laid before Quarter Sessions.
- List of petty constables appointed 1859 [MIC 3893]
- QDD(B) Maps probably made in connection with arbitration awards relating to boundaries on commons. These may have been deposited with the Clerk of the Peace, although there is no direct evidence, or they may have emanated from the private practice of the Clerk of the Peace as a solicitor
- Plan of Hunderthwaite & Romalldkirk commons boundary 1812; plan of Thoraby & Bishopdale commons boundary n.d. early 19th cent. [MIC 2263]
- QDD(D) Enrolments of deeds, conveyances and inclosure awards. Includes enrolments of deeds of bargain and sale following the Act of 1535 which ordered such deeds to be enrolled within six months in one of the Courts of Westminster or with the Clerk of the Peace in the county in which the property lay, conveyances by deed or will of Papists' estates under the Act of 1716-17 (see also QDN(C)), and inclosure awards (c.f. Guide No. 4 List of North Yorkshire & North Riding Enclosure Awards)

See APPENDIX II for microfilm reference numbers

QDE(M) The Freeholders' Register Act "for better securing the rights of persons qualified to vote" required registers to be distributed by the Clerk of the Peace and returned to him for enrolment and preservation in the records. It was repealed in the following year, 1789.

Freeholders' Register Act 1788 records 1788-9, 1832 [MIC 468]

QDE(P) Poll books for contested elections were to be preserved among the records of Quarter Sessions in pursuance of an Act of 1711. The Ballot Act of 1872 replaced poll books by ballot papers which are forwarded to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery. Although there were other contested elections during the period, poll books for only three elections have survived

Poll books for county elections 1807, 1835 [MIC 470, 475, 482-3]

QDE(R) The Reform Act of 1832 abolished the assessments to Land Tax as an electoral qualification and required an annual register to be made. The requirement to deposit assessments with the Clerk of the Peace was also ended. The electoral register was printed by the Clerk of the Peace until 1889 when the Clerk of the County Council took over the duty. In 1974 responsibility for its compilation passed to the District Councils. A short article on the various alterations to electoral qualifications can be found in NYCRO Review 1994 (NYCROP 57). Registers are available for the North Riding from 1832 to 1973 and for North Yorkshire from 1974 to date. Registers for York and for those parts of the former West and East Ridings which were transferred to North Yorkshire are not available pre 1974.

- QDG Under the Act of 1710 "for the better preservation of game" a lord of a manor could appoint one gamekeeper with the power to kill game and had to enter his name with the Clerk of the Peace. The Act of 1784 required "every person qualified in respect of property to kill game" to register his name and abode with and pay fees to the Clerk of the Peace and to register every appointment of a gamekeeper. In 1785 an Act required "every person who shall keep any dog, gun, net or other engine for the taking or destruction of game" to register and take out a certificate annually. This was repealed in 1861. The Game Laws were revised by the Act of 1831: every person who took out an annual game licence was allowed to kill game subject to the law of trespass; registration of deputations was to continue

- QDHE To encourage the growth of hemp and flax in England, Acts of 1781 & 1786 provided that a bounty not exceeding a total of £15,000 per annum was to be paid. Claims were to be attested and countersigned by a Justice and 2 parish officers before being sent to Quarter Sessions. A claimant before receiving the bounty was to enter into a bond with the Clerk of the Peace that he was really entitled to it. The Justices were to advertise the bounties in the local newspapers and claims were to be published at Midsummer Sessions. A statement of claims was to be made up by the Justices and sent to the Commissioners for Trade and Plantations who would settle the claims

- QDJ The petty constables of parishes and, after 1825, the overseers were directed to return annually to Quarter Sessions, a list of men between 21 and 70 qualified to serve as jurors under the Act of 1696. Copies of these were to be kept by the Clerk of the Peace in a book. Qualifications were altered by Acts of 1730 & 1825. The returns give the names of those qualified, some occupations (more usual in the 19th century), the date of previous service (from the 1750s), distinguish Quakers, and after the Act of 1827, specify the type of qualifying property.

- QDL(C) Acts of 1789, 1791, 1821 & 1827, continuing regulations under earlier Acts for regulating corn imports and exports, provided that corn dealers, maltsters and millers were liable for a fine if they bought corn for sale unless within one month of starting to trade they filed with the Clerk of the Peace a declaration that their returns of prices would be true.

Declarations of corn dealers 1789-93, 1823, 1827 [MIC 2348]

- QDL(V) An Act of 1552 required victuallers' recognizances (or bonds) for good behaviour to be taken before two justices and "certified" to the next Quarter Sessions and to remain of record. By an Act of 1753 the Clerk of the Peace was also to keep a register of alehouse keepers (from the filed recognizances). The Alehouse Act of 1828 abolished the system of recognizances and sureties.

- QDN(C) The Act of 1715, and later Acts, directed that Papists' estates were to be enrolled in the county in which they lay. This followed the first Jacobite Rebellion of 1715 in which many Roman Catholics were involved. The Act of 1716 also laid down that conveyances by deed or will were to be enrolled. The object of this was to facilitate the seizure of property belonging to Jacobites in the event of further trouble. Enrolments of these conveyances by Papists in the North Riding are to be found among the enrolled deeds and awards in QDD(D).

- QDX *It had been the practice of Justices to file summary convictions and depositions (taken before one or two Justices) with the Clerk of the Peace. This was made compulsory by the Summary Jurisdiction Act of 1848. Under the Juvenile Offenders Act of 1847 children not over the age of 14 charged with simple larceny could be summarily convicted before 2 Justices and the convictions and depositions were to be transmitted to the Clerk of the Peace, who was to make a monthly return to the Home Office. Summary jurisdiction was extended to all cases of simple larceny in 1855 and to other related offences by the Summary Jurisdiction Act of 1879. Both these Acts contained provisions for filing convictions with the Clerk of the Peace

Under the Act of 1662 'for establishing additional revenue upon his Majesty' an annual payment of 2 shillings for each fire hearth was required from every householder. Returns of lists of householders and the number of hearths were to be compiled by the parish constables and sent to the Justices of the Peace in Quarter Sessions, with duplicates sent to the Exchequer in London. None of the enrolments at North Riding Quarter Sessions survive but the Exchequer returns are now in the Public Record Office. A transcript of the North Yorkshire returns for 1672-3 is available. Other certificates (3) are to be found in QSB Easter 1685. The duty was abolished in 1688

- QFR The Justices were empowered under various Acts of Parliament to raise yearly rates for various purposes. The County Rates Act of 1739 consolidated these rates and empowered the Justices to levy or "estreat" one general rate for county expenses. This was to be collected by the High Constables of wapentakes from the parish overseers and paid out of the poor rate. Acts of 1815 & 1845 provided for reassessments, returns of rateable values and the appointment of a committee to assess a fair basis for the county rate. Further amending acts were passed in 1852 & 1864 and the Court of Quarter Sessions remained the body responsible for the initiation, assessment and collection of county rates until the formation of the County Council

QP The records listed here are those of the North Riding police force itself. Records accumulated by the Clerk of the Peace can be found in class QAP. The Force was established in 1856 with 56 officers and constables under a Chief Constable. It was organised in eight divisions, with the boroughs of Richmond, Scarborough and Middlesbrough having their own forces, and was controlled by a committee of Quarter Sessions. The Richmond force amalgamated with the North Riding in 1889 & Scarborough ceased to maintain a separate force in 1947.

QSB The Session rolls or bundles, which are really rolled files, contain most of the papers received or created during Sessions and considered worthy of preservation. They relate both to the judicial and the administrative functions of the Justices and can include jury lists, writs to summon juries, presentments and indictments (charges in judicial proceedings), depositions (examinations of defendants and witnesses), recognizances (bonds to secure appearance at Court, be of good behaviour etc), calendars (or lists) of prisoners, petitions, licences, highway diversions, poor law papers and sacrament certificates. Sessions were held four times a year - Epiphany, Easter, Trinity and Midsummer. At first the Court met in various towns throughout the Riding including Northallerton, Stokesley, Richmond, Thirsk & Malton, but by the early nineteenth century it had settled in Northallerton.

QSC An Act of 1581 made failure to attend the parish church an indictable offence which could be dealt with at Quarter Sessions. Separate registers of recusants are extant for a number of years in the seventeenth century and lists of recusants can also be found in the Quarter Sessions minute books (c.f. QSM)

QSD The Justices first became involved in the relief of insolvent debtors following the Act of 1670, 22 & 23 Charles II c.20. This Act was amended and re-enacted by a succession of Acts and particularly by Acts of 1729 & 1748. Under the Act of 1670 anyone in prison and not worth £10 could take an oath before a justice who would summon the creditor to Quarter Sessions. If the statement of the debtor was not challenged, the justices could order the debtor's release. Under the Act of 1748 the gaoler was directed to deliver to Sessions a list of prisoners for debt, debtors were to deliver a schedule of their real and personal estate, if any, and notices to creditors were to be published; all with a view to the prisoner's discharge.

Insolvent debtors' papers including list of prisoners in York Castle & Richmond gaol for debt, schedules of debtors' goods, notices to creditors, petitions to Quarter Sessions for relief and accounts and papers relating to the sale of debtors' goods 1724-1774 [MIC 3515-16]

QSG Calendars of prisoners: mostly "after sessions" calendars or lists of prisoners with details of prisoners tried at Quarter Sessions and their sentences and of prisoners confined in the House of Correction. Some "before trial" calendars or lists of prisoners awaiting trial, some with sentences added later. The bulk of the calendars, which form the most readily available record of the criminal business of Quarter Sessions are printed. Calendars are also to be found in the Quarter Sessions bundles (QSB)

- QSM The minute & order books, the formal record of the Court proceedings, are extant in the North Riding in an unbroken series from 1605, with one isolated record of a court in 1570 at Richmond. Up to 1769 there is one series of minute books covering both the judicial and the administrative proceedings. From 1769 these books contain only administrative business and a separate series of minutes containing records of judicial business begins. In 1813 a third book called "the Special Orders Book" begins containing only those orders relating to the administrative work of the Sessions such as the appointment and reports of committees and county officials. Separate Quarter Sessions courts were held for the boroughs of Scarborough and Richmond.

School Records (c.f. BS)

The records listed here are the records accumulated by individual schools, including log books and admission registers. Most log books date from the 1860s & 1870s when, as a condition of an annual parliamentary grant to elementary schools, a record had to be kept of school organisation, curriculum, buildings and staffing. HMI reports had to be entered in the log book which also contains information on staff discipline, health of pupils and attendance. It must however be stressed that there is not a lot of information about individual pupils in the log books and such as there is might be of a confidential nature. For this reason the more recent log books are not generally made available. Admission registers are not subject to the same restrictions and those from all periods can be consulted.

GUIDE NO 1 INDEX

This is an index to the foregoing list. It is not an index to the contents of the original documents.

Townships lying within the county of North Yorkshire, or from April 1996 within the York Unitary Authority area, appear in this list in alphabetical order. Townships which prior to 1974 fell within one of the three historic ridings of Yorkshire also appear in alphabetical order with a note as to whether they are now in East, West or South Yorkshire, County Durham or Teesside. "Teesside" has been used to indicate those townships which from 1974 to 1996 were part of Cleveland county & now fall under one of the unitary authorities with which it was replaced. All other places are listed initially by county and then by township, except for a very few places for which it has proved impossible to identify the county. These places are of necessity listed by township alone.
